2011 Symposium on the Consequences of Work Injury

November 17 & 18, 2011

Hart House, University of Toronto*

Symposium Program

Objectives

1. To showcase research, capacity building and knowledge mobilization activities of the Research Action Alliance on the Consequences of Work Injury (RAACWI).
2. To engage policy-makers, researchers and the injured worker communities in productive discussions about mobilizing research for positive change.
3. To identify knowledge gaps and prioritize research needed to fill these gaps.
4. To provide a meaningful forum for dialogue with injured worker communities, and other stakeholders from across the country, to identify opportunities for knowledge/information sharing and fruitful collaboration.
5. To generate interest in and enthusiasm for new research and related activities, with the goal of developing collaborative research proposals.
6. To solicit more support and get more people involved in RAACWI initiatives.

Injured Worker Experiences and Related Research from across Canada: Learning from Each Other and Working Together

Location: Hart House, Music Room, 2nd Floor, University of Toronto

Workers' compensation is principally a provincial and territorial matter and we tend to work within our own jurisdictions. Many of us are struck, however, at just how similar the issues are across the country. While one day is barely enough time to cover all of the issues, we hope that the activities during this day will help to identify our areas of common interest and establish a solid basis for continued communication and future collaboration.

1. Registration and Breakfast 8:00 a.m.
2. Welcome (Steve Mantis and Emile Tompa) 8:30 a.m.
3. Keynote Presentation 8:40 a.m.
Compensation for Injured Workers: The History and Future
(Andy King, Adjunct Professor, School of Labour Studies, McMaster University)
4. Issues and Research from Around the Country 9:20 a.m.
