

INJURED WORKER CAST

Conversations in the field of workers compensation and health & safety in Ontario, Canada and beyond.

Episode 1: Employer ‘rebates’

Injured Workers Community Legal Clinic is thrilled to share its first episode of InjuredWorkerCast, a podcast produced by IWC that captures conversations about workers compensation, health and safety across the province and beyond.

Our goal is to give voice to injured worker stories and experiences, highlight important research and critically analyze the laws and policies that affect the lives of workers both here at home and around the world.

Episode 1 features a conversation between Tebasum Durani and John McKinnon, who are both lawyers here at IWC. John and Tabasum discuss how Ontario’s Workplace Safety and Insurance Board is funded, why it is funded that way, and also a controversial decision for Ontario’s WSIB to hand over $2.5 billion dollars to employers in the lead up to an anticipated spring election.

Of course, they mention the newly released report What Injured Workers Need,

Future episodes – which we aim to release monthly – will feature guests from many parts of the injured & ill worker and health & safety sectors.

- You can tune in on Apple Podcasts, Spotify or Youtube