

In this new episode, titled "WSIB's Age Discrimination", IWC staff lawyer Tebasum Durani interviews legal experts (and co-workers) John McKinnon and Chris Grawey about one of the ways WSIB policies and practices create poverty, focusing specifically on what happens when workers turn 65.

The interview lays out the problems faced by injured workers as they approach retirement age, the solutions to that problem.

While the policies in question apply to workers as they turn 65, it is an issue that affects anyone with a work acquired injury or illness, regardless of age. If you want more information on the ways WSIB's policy discriminates against older injured workers and how you can help, visit InjuredWorkersOnline.

LABOUR PAINS

AN INJURED WORKER PODCAST

IWC
INJURED WORKERS
COMMUNITY LEGAL CLINIC

EPISODE 5
WSIB's Age
Discrimination

Tune in to this and previous podcasts on

Spotify
Apple Podcasts
YouTube

Make sure to subscribe or follow the podcast so you get notices when new episodes drop.